Press release – New Board Members at DanBred

The owners of DanBred recently met and selected a new board and president for the company. This is an important step towards rebuilding trust in the company.

The owners of DanBred – Landbrug & Fødevarer (Danish Agriculture & Food Council), DBI Holding and Danish Agro – announced on Saturday, September 25 that all members of the board, including the chairman, were to step down from their positions. Following this announcement, a new board was appointed. The new board recently met and allocated the following positions:

- Andreas Lundby (Chairman)
- Søren Foged Overgaard (Vice Chairman)
- Peter Iversen (Vice Chairman)
- Lotte Broholm Andersen
- Jørgen Holm Westergaard
- Allan V. Pedersen

In addition to the members appointed by the owners, employee representatives will hold positions on the board in the future.

DanBred's new board will focus on rebuilding the trust and confidence of the DanBred employees, suppliers, partners etc.

“Like everyone else who has followed this case in the media, I have the deepest sympathy for the women this has impacted, and I strongly condemn what has been described. It will be a top priority for the board to create a new beginning for DanBred. There has been a lot of media attention and that is completely understandable. Now, our main focus will be on the company's internal affairs. All employees should feel safe at work, and our suppliers and partners should feel like they can count on us. Trust takes time to build, but we will start today and work tirelessly to make it happen.” says Andreas Lundby who is the new president of the board of DanBred.
